STOLEN BULL -A colored man arrived here about five o'clock this morning, driving before him a fine looking bull, which he put in the pen at the market house. He represented that the bull had been very troublesome and destroyed a good deal of property at home, and that its owner had commissioned him to sell it at any price, to get rid of it. He offered to sell the animal for $10 to one of the butchers. His tale being regarded as suspicious he was about to be arrested, when it was suggested that he be allowed to go and get a certificate of his right to sill, and he accordingly was released. When last seen, he was beyond Four Mile Run, making the best of his way to Washington. Shortly after his departure two boys came in from near Anandale and identified the bull as on the table was lost -ayes, 46; noes, 143. one which had been stolen from their father, last night, and in search of which he had gone to Washington.
